"I was reading a book called "Biophilia" by a Harvard biologist named Wilson. He talked in that book about keystone species being lost. He was saying that thousands of species are being lost every year on our planet. Many of them had not even been recognized, they just are gone. We didn't even know they had existed. At that time I was looking for a story idea for 'Star Trek IV' [directed by Nimoy]. And I was intrigued with that idea that maybe a species being lost on our earth could cause a characteristic event to take place, that something really terrible could happen if we lose a keystone species. So that's how I got to the whale story."

-- Leonard Nimoy in interview with Pharrell

Leonard Nimoy's Whale Song

(Doohan, Scotty) a lot. Leonard (Nimoy, Mr. Spock) was always kind of unapproachable. But a very good man. Sound ethics and a good sense of morality.

How so?

When it came to the attention of the cast that there was a disparity in pay in that George and I were getting the same pay but Nichelle was not getting as much, I took it to Leonard and he took it to the front office and they corrected that.

He was sort of the captain, then?

On that issue, he was. You could count on Leonard for that kind of thing.

I've had some problem with this complaint for some time because it has some weaknesses in the sense that it claims or insinuates that Hollywood is targeting the Asian male specifically.

Now, there are few Asians starring in Hollywood movies and television, and this is partly, but not entirely, a function of Asians still being a small minority (5.3%) of the overall population. So it's hard to make too much out of such a small data set statistically.

However, sometimes the re...

The problem with the Filipino American diet is that it often copies that of the Philippine elite even if most Fil-Ams do not come from that class. That diet is terribly unhealthy.

For some reason, they do not "upgrade" the traditional provincial, rural folks diet, which is very wholesome. Only a few, choose to fuse some of the better elements of the Western diet to create something genuinely Filipino American following the "best of both worlds" pattern.

First Black Elected to Head Harvard's Law Review

By FOX BUTTERFIELD

Special to The New York Times

BOSTON, Feb. 5—The Harvard Law Review, generally considered the most prestigious in the country, elected the first black president in its 104-year history today. The job is considered the highest student position at Harvard Law School.

The new president of the Review is Barack Obama, a 25-year-old graduate of Columbia University who spent four years heading a community development program for poor blacks on Chicago's South Side before enrolling in law school. His late father, Barack Obama, was a finance minister in Kenya and his mother, Ann Dunham, is an American anthropologist now doing fieldwork in Indonesia. Mr. Obama was born in Hawaii.

"The fact that I've been elected shows a lot of progress," Mr. Obama said today in an interview. "It's encouraging."

"But it's important that stories like overwhelm this individual student's achievement."

Mr. Obama was elected after a meeting of the review's 80 editors that convened Sunday and lasted until early this morning, a participant said.

Until the 1970's the editors were picked on the basis of grades, and the president of the Law Review was the student with the highest academic rank. Among these were Elliot L. Richardson, the former Attorney General, and Irwin Griswold, a dean of the Harvard Law School and Solicitor General under Presidents Lyndon B. Johnson and Richard M. Nixon.

That system came under attack in the 1970's and was replaced by a program in which about half the editors are chosen for their grades and the other half are chosen by fellow students after a special writing competition. The new system, disputed when it began, was meant to help insure that minority students became editors of The Law Review.

25 years ago today, the New York Times ran its first profile of Barack Obama
A trip down memory lane.

"Uber has argued it is a ride-sharing company, part of a new sharing economy, and therefore falls outside of Edmonton's vehicle-for-hire bylaws.

In its filing, the City of Edmonton objected to that terminology.

"The term ride sharing is, in my view, another word for carpooling. It is clear from Uber's operations that it is not engaged in or facilitating carpooling. It brokers vehicle transportation for compensation only," said Garry Dziwenka, director of business licensing and vehicle for hire, in an affidavit filed with the court."

Paolo Paddeu Just a doubt on that flag: the field was really blue ? If so why the field is so faded and the blue on the Coat-of-Arms is so bright?

February 1 at 7:25am · Like · 🍷2

Mark De Aries One possible reason: the COA might be embroidered or painted, thus having made of material not so easily to fade in contrast to its field.
